

“PRISM” CONCERT
AT NHS
APRIL 25TH
7:30 P.M.

A select group of Newark High School instrumental and vocal musicians will perform in a unique concert format called “PRISM” April 25th at 7:30 p.m. in the Newark High School auditorium.

“For quite some time, we have wanted to bring this style concert to Newark and we now have the opportunity,” said Robert Humphrey, instrumental music teacher at NHS who planned the event with NHS vocal music teacher Kate Flock.

“A PRISM concert is presented with the concept of the audience experiencing music as one might experience light when it is reflected through a prism. You will hear small ensembles, soloists, and specialized groups perform music without interruption from varied locations within the auditorium. As one group performs, another group prepares. As the lights go down on one, the lights arise on another and they perform. This continues for the entirety of the performance without applause until the last group has performed,” Humphrey explained.

Students performing in this concert had to audition to take part in this event.

“Everyone is very excited to bring this to Newark,” he said. “Please consider coming to support these exceptional musicians. It takes a ton of fortitude to perform a solo/duet/small ensemble work in this exposed setting with little light and no applause until the end.”
