

Lincoln School families will be treated to another 7 p.m. virtual, pre-bedtime story reading March 25th.

The monthly "Reading At Night" bedtime story program began in November and not only are Lincoln School students enjoying being read to, even some entire families are joining in as well.

First grade teacher Meredith Calabretta, who is also a member of the school's PTA that is sponsoring the event, said reading children's books before bedtime to the students is a soothing way to promote the love of reading outside of school.

Each month, she helps facilitate the 15-to 20-minute virtual reading of a bedtime story on Zoom and the session opens with an introduction of reader and the book by LS Principal John Ginter.

Gwen Curtis, K-5 Librarian will read "How to Catch a Leprechaun" by Adam Wallace March 25th.

Interested participants are supplied the ZOOM meeting and passcode numbers in advance by the school.

Sleepy time tales

