

Lexi Morales, a 2012 Newark High School graduate, is the new secretary at Lincoln School.

She filled the vacancy created by the resignation at the end of June of Rebecca Briggs.

On the job for a month, Morales is looking forward to the opening of school and delighted to be at a job where she'll be working with children.

"I like it. It's been really quiet so far, but is beginning to pick up," she said August 27th.

A Newark native, Morales, the 2012 NTA Scholarship winner, had initially planned to be a teacher, but later changed her major at St. Bonaventure from education to sociology which she enjoyed, but later realized would not be the best career fit for her.

So she's been working in the medical field since she left college.

Prior to coming to Lincoln School, Morales worked for at Newark-Wayne Community Hospital as surgery scheduler for two years. Before that, she worked as a patient registration representative at Thompson Hospital in Canandaigua and its Urgent Care Center in Newark for 2 1/2 years.

Before that she worked as a personnel assistant for a physical therapist's practice in Canandaigua.

Morales, who said she is a "huge sports fan" said a favorite pastime of hers when she's not working, is watching NFL football, especially the Miami Dolphins, and college basketball.

While at NHS, she was a varsity football and basketball cheerleader and played Varsity Girls Lacrosse.

"Lexi is a fantastic addition to Lincoln School," said Principal John Ginter. "She has a positive attitude and will make great connections with our students. Having attended Lincoln School as a child and being a Newark High School graduate, Lexi truly embodies our district's core values and beliefs."

Welcome Aboard Lexi!
