

Newark High School's Functional Skills Development Class was in the spotlight in the 5:30 a.m. "Honor Roll" segment on WROC News Channel 8 November 17th.

The early morning segment recognizes

"good things" going on in area schools throughout the region.

Feature host Josh Nichols, who is also the station's meteorologist, highlighted special education teachers Matt Groot and Sarah Kiley's class that focuses on developing real world skills as well as academics.

Way To Go!

The segment highlighted its accomplishments like:

- Reds Wagon Catering _ That makes and sells baked goods on a cart daily in the school and caters special events in the school district.
- Celebrity Chefs _ Special days in the class in which teachers and or staff members prepare a recipe of their choosing with the class.

Eric Palumbo, another special education teacher at NHS, nominated the program for the "Honor Roll" segment.

Watch the segment here: <http://www.rochesterfirst.com/video?videoId=609804388&carousel=1&index=3>

"It is wonderful to see the students who work so hard in Reds Wagon get recognized for their accomplishments and hard work," Groot said. "Our students have so many different talents and unique personalities and it is great to have more staff come into our class to interact and meet more students. Thanks to all staff who have volunteered their time to come into our classroom and to the district staff that supports many of the efforts that Reds Wagon provides."

Thanks to Matt Groot for providing photos!